"Bridesmaid" Karen Feinberg and Mr and Mrs. James Montini pose with a sample from George's Flowers of Upland. The company specializes in custom made wedding flower arrangements.

A helping hand for the bride-to-be

More and more brides and grooms are discovering a wedding can be elaborate or simple, but either way it pays to plan ahead.

Planning a wedding can take nearly a year, or just a few days, depending on how elaborate it is. If your tastes lean toward the unusual, there are specialized shops that can cater to you.

"We like to help the customer, in as much as possible, in creating the ideas," said Joe Martinez, who runs We Three, a custom wedding shop on Ninth Street in Upland.

Martinez said June is his busiest time of year and that a June bride may have spent six months to a year planning the event.

We Three, he said, can provide a bride and groom with "anything from A to Z, and if we don't have it, we can get it. A couple can come in here and get a $2.50 garter, or they can have us plan the wedding from start to finish."

The merchandise displayed in Martinez's store, a rambling, blue Victorian house on Ninth Street, will substantiate his claim. The walls are lined with wedding paraphernalia including a large selection of gowns, veils, tuxedos, invitation catalogues, flower displays and cake tops. We Three can even provide flowers, catering and a clergyman.

"We explore all the possibilities to help make a bride and groom's dreams come true," Martinez said.

Those dreams may include goldfish as table centerpieces at the reception. Martinez rose to just such a challenge, providing a setting that allowed the fish to swim in long plastic tubes decorated with flowers.

We Three's customized weddings have a wide price range up to about $6,000. Receptions are usually the highest cost item, Martinez said.

"If you're feeding 120 people, it can be expensive," he said.

Some of the more luxurious items for a wedding — like a limousine — are not as expensive as might be expected, he said. "You can have a limo for a wedding for about $120," Martinez said. A flower-draped, horse-drawn carriage is available — at a much steeper price tag.

George's Upland Flower shop, owned by Paul Davis and Martin Sillivent, provides custom floral arrangements for weddings — arrangements that could set back a couple as much as $12,000 or as little as $100.

Davis, who is already booked through most of 1985, does weddings throughout Southern California, providing what he calls an "unusual type of service."

Most of George's flowers are imported, usually from South America or Europe, he said. Another popular item in his portfolio is real stuffed animals, provided by a taxidermist.

When a recent bride requested an albino peacock for her wedding, Davis supplied it.

If requested, they can provide a 32-foot-tall flower strewn gazebo.

Another new trend in weddings is wrapped around modern technology.

Video tape provides a "complete record of a couple's day," according to Dynamic Video of Upland. For $450, Dynamic will set up two cameras and even a special effects generator to the chapel.

Dynamic's Karen Thomas said the special effects mixer allows the tape to transcend the "home video" look.

After the vows are said and the gifts unwrapped, the couple's honeymoon may be the finishing touch for a once-in-a-lifetime event. Like other travel agencies, A Touch of Class in Rancho Cucamonga has devoted much of its business to booking honeymoon trips.

Manager Shirley Robinson said that the most popular choices for honeymoons include romantic cruises like sailing in Hawaii.

Again, the newlywed's budget limitations are considered from the start and advance planning is a must.

"We like to show people what they can do for their money," said Robinson. Usually, Robinson said, planning for a honeymoon takes about a year.

Still, despite the advantages of advance planning, there are always people who wait until the last minute. Even then, Martinez said, the situation isn't hopeless.

"We've put together a wedding in a week," he said. "It can be done."

But if you're in a hurry, you'd better skip the goldfish. □

Buffalo Chips is an unusual mix

By Joy Sommer-Dahlem

Take the vice president of Aerojet, add an art and photography teacher from Chaffey College and mix well with a physicist specializing in aerodynamics and a retired physiologist-turned-sculptor and what do you have?

Buffalo Chips.

Buffalo Chips?

Yes, Buffalo Chips. Jim Bell (the Aerojet vice-president) and Robert Smith (the Chaffey teacher) both of Claremont, and Doc Logan (the retired physiologist) and Darryl Trulin (the engineer) of Upland are the four men who make up Buffalo Chips, one of the valley's few genuine bluegrass bands.

The four met while taking lessons from Dorothy Chase at the Claremont Folk Music Center and, although all held demanding jobs and had families, the call of the stage was too much to resist.

"We all wanted to do the same thing — play. So we started practicing together and before we knew it we were actually playing professionally," Smith said.

The group, christened "Buffalo Chips" by Bell's daughter, made its debut just a year ago at Fat Daddy's in Upland.

"We thought the name told it all — we're a casual, western-style group that doesn't take itself too seriously."

When Buffalo Chips took to the stage the first time, they realized how unprepared they really were. "We had all learned to play sitting down and when we took the stage, that's the way we played. Plus, we'd never used a mike before so we ignored it," he said with a laugh.

At that time, none of the men sang, either. The only things they played were the four songs in their repertoire without any vocal accompaniment.

"A year ago we really sounded like the beginners that we were — we were almost paying people to listen to us," he said.

A year ago we really sounded like the beginners that we were — we were almost paying people to listen to us.

performances, that has changed. "We're entertainers now. We feel good about the improvement and we know two years from now we'll be better.

Bell, who plays banjo and mandolin; Logan, on bass, harmonica, guitar and banjo; Smith, on the fiddle, mandolin and slide guitar; and Trulin, on the guitar and bass, offer a traditional bluegrass sound rooted in an early period of American folk history.

Included in the type of music they play are tunes like the theme from "Bonnie and Clyde," "Cripple Creek," "Old Joe Clark," "Shady Grove," "Worried Man Blues," "Will The Circle Be Unbroken," and "Wabash Cannonball."

Buffalo Chips members sank quite a bit of money into their sound equipment last year and cleared only $100 after expenses but said that it didn't matter.

"We aren't in for the money but for the enjoyment, although it is nice we starting to make more money because it's helping to pay off the equipment," Smith said.

Since all four men are committed heavily in other areas of their lives, they don't expect to be able to play any more often than they are now, even though they are getting a lot more calls than when they first started.

"The time factor is probably the only limit we will have," Smith said confidently. "As it is, we often have someone sitting in for one or the other of us because we all travel on business."

One of the group's biggest 'gigs' so far is coming up in Fontana June 20, when they will play for a chamber of commerce industrial mixer at Utility Trailer Sales, 15567 Valley Blvd. from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

"We've been playing a lot of private parties, rest homes and hospitals and the response has been all we could have wished for," he said. "We all agreed, when it stops being fun, we stop doing it."

It's a dog-day summer for carriers

By David Jordan
Upland Postmaster

Dog owners have the responsibility to protect their pets and carriers.

Summer may seem like a sociable season, but dogs of every breed and size are permitted to run loose and are making enemies by threatening public safety. Letter carriers know that.

More than 7,000 letter carriers were bitten by dogs last year and many suffered permanent injury. By any standards, dog bites are a problem of epidemic proportions, especially during summer when more dogs are left outdoors.

Sadly, none of the thousands of painful, expensive dog bite cases would have to happen if owners only would take the time to recognize that one of the prime responsibilities of pet ownership is to protect the pet and those with whom it comes in contact.

The Postal Service has the right to refuse to deliver mail to any home where a dangerous or threatening dog is not kept restrained. Moreover, if the dog is allowed to roam free, service to an entire neighborhood can be interrupted.

Dog owners also should be aware of a program under which the Postal Service can recover money it loses in work hours in addition to injury compensation for bitten carriers.

Some people may criticize the Postal Service for cracking down on negligent pet owners. There's something almost anti-American in a message to "keep your dog fenced, leashed or confined."

However, these sentiments ought to pale in the glaring light of the statistics of death, disfigurement and painful scarring of thousands of letter carriers each year.

We're asking citizens to realize they are responsible for their pets and to help protect their pets, their carriers and themselves from the staggering human and financial costs of dog bites. □

Recreation caters to public's interests

By Terri Tirella

Upland and Rancho Cucamonga recreation departments are responding to a trend toward handicrafts by offering a wider selection of classes, along with a variety of new selections geared to other interests.

"We try to offer at least one new class (per session)," said Cyndi Testa, Upland recreation supervisor. "I like to think there's a trend toward crafts because I like crafts."

Upland Recreation will offer several new classes for adults including needlecraft, candy making and batik.

"We're also offering shorter sessions so people can fit classes around their vacation schedules," Testa said.

Another convenience Upland recreation is offering is purchasing supplies for students.

"We include a supplies fee as a convenience factor ... instructors can sometimes get materials at a discount price and anything that's left over from a project, the people divide it up and take it home," she said.

One-day workshops and Saturday classes are another way Upland is trying to meet the needs of working residents. A Mom/Dad and Me gymnastics class for children is being offered on Saturday mornings.

"Mom/Dad and Me is not a totally new class, but it's usually offered weekdays," Testa said. By offering it Saturday, "the working parent can get involved with their young child, age 2 to 3½."

"They learn to share fun times and the children learn simple things, how to hop, walk on a low balance beam, with mom or dad working with the child learning coordination type stuff," she said.

Participants in the Can 'N' Jam'n class will get to take samples of their class's project home. "We're also adding a recipe book, that's like a resource manual," Testa said.

The class is set for mid-August. After the fruit season peaks, Testa said, "and people are tired of eating it, it's time to can."

Recreation employees will try to supply the fruit from their own trees.

Testa said needlecraft and batik classes were divided into sessions to fit more easily around holiday schedules.

Needlecraft is offered in two three-week sessions, with each week featuring a different project. Batik is also offered in two sections, with one project slated for each session.

"In the batik class, we'll be working with designs and learning how to put it on the fabric and how to wax the fabric using the resistance method," Testa said.

Window shades, pillows, clothing and wall hangings are projects which can be decorated with the batik method.

There is a fee for the class.

Church looks to the next 100 years

By Terri Tirella

With 100 years under its belt, the Methodist congregation at the Old Stone Church in Rancho Cucamonga is preparing for its next bicentennial celebration.

The congregation recently celebrated its 100th birthday and the 75th birthday of the old stone church on Archibald Avenue and Church Street in the city of Rancho Cucamonga.

A special Sunday service was held with a commemorative dinner in which members of the congregation dressed in 1920s style for the June 6 church rededication.

"Ours is the oldest congregation in town, the oldest church in the community," Pastor Glen Larsen said. The congregation started on the corner of Archibald and Base Line Road.

"They started in an old wooden structure in 1884 with seven charter members. Two years later the church blew down in a wind storm, so they moved down the street and built another wood structure. That structure was destroyed by fire so the community decided to build something more substantial and approved construction of a stone church," Larsen said.

Henry Klusman, a cement contractor, supervised the project, Larsen said. Construction took less than a year and was almost entirely done by volunteers.

"Klusman was very fastidious. There were 337 wagon loads of stones from Alta Loma, which were pulled by horses. He would determine which stones were the proper shape and structure and had special wire reinforcing," Larsen said.

Larsen said he followed the same dedication service that was used long ago, including the hymns that were sung. "I had to search the archives to find the three hymns, only one of those sung then are in our present hymnal."

The autographing and distribution of a book, "The History of the United Methodist Church of Cucamonga," was another facet of the birthday celebration. The book, which is still available at the church office, was written by Martha Gaines Stoebe in collaboration with Hazel Stoebe Billings and members of their extended families.

The congregation has not been idle during since that time. It's most recent project has been the renovation of Mary Klusman Hall, beginning this March with a June 16 anticipated completion date.

"The project was entirely done by the congregation in the same spirit of the original stone church building," Larsen said.

"In three years we have completed the Stoebe building, named after John Stoebe, the rock mover. His wife, Marion, is still a member at 102 years old," Larsen said.

The congregation also completed the Ferguson building and Klusman Hall renovation. Larsen said the additions will allow church officials to develop Pebbles Christian School. "We have preschool and kindergarten classes. Now, in fall, we'll offer first grade."

He said the church serves 180 families through the school outreach program.

"We're looking at 1984 as a pivotal year," Larsen said. "We're going into the second century and taking an aggressive position in education outreach, congregational growth and service to the community."

He said this new, aggressive role is a turnabout for the congregation "because the church has a history of being a close-knit family and basically (staying) the same size for the last decade."

"The past three years we have prepared ourselves both structurally and in our minds so we can move forward and be more aggressive, and far more evangelistic than in the past," Larsen said.

Larsen likened the Rancho Cucamonga church with the history of the Methodist denomination, both rich in its past heritage and tied into the growth of the community it served.

Larsen said the Methodists did not build cathedrals but "grew more rapidly than any other denomination because they (circuit ministers) went to where the people were," he said.

He said in Rancho Cucamonga the population has quadrupled in one decade. "We see ourselves called to responsibility as a frontier church would be, to respond to the need of spreading the Gospel to people here."

"We have to reach them ... our call is to be more than what we were, to not be selfish, but reach out to others," Larsen said.

The congregation has grown to more than 300 members, a 40 percent increase in the last three years, Larsen said. Many of the new members are just now discovering the rich heritage of its church's past.

The church is now listed as an historic landmark and "has an almost romantic past," Larsen said. □

INLAND HEALTH PLAN

LIBRARY NEWS

By Pat Castaneda
Principal Librarian

The friends of the Upland Public Library are currently one of our community's most active groups. They support the library by raising funds for equipment and programs which would otherwise have to be paid out of the annual budget. The supplies for the children's summer reading program are provided by the Friends, as well as the fees for many of the programs put on in the summer by the children's Section.

The furniture for the east patio was purchased by the Friends, and so was the microcomputer the staff uses to produce the Community Resources Directory. These are only a few of the fruits of our Friends efforts.

The group has two major fund raising events. Both involve a lot of hard work. We have Friends here in the library all year long carting books from the donation shelf back to the dusty storage area. (The storage area used to be dark as well as dusty, but the Friends paid for the installation of a lighting system.)

The books are all dragged out in October for a big book sale. Members spend a week sorting and pricing. The event brings in from $500 to $2,000 for the treasury.

The other big Friends' fund raising event is the annual garage sale. It takes place in June (this year June 23rd), and is much attended by aficionados of flea markets and garage sales. The reason this sale is so successful is that it draws such high quality junk. The Friends have 350 members, and many of them save their "collectibles" for a year.

Because the proceeds of the sale go directly to such a good cause, people let loose of items they might otherwise keep in the garage for another year or two. In addition, people who support libraries naturally have good intelligence and superior taste, so there is a process of natural selection going on which leads to better junk than one might find elsewhere. On the morning of the sale (which takes place on the Library's west patio) we have people lined up waiting for first crack at the treasures.

The group has an interesting structure which allows members to support it by paying dues and attending functions, or by more actively serving on the Friends Board.

The board is really the heart of the group since the most active members are on it. They plan the fund raising events, volunteer their time and talents to carry out the plans, and decide how the money they make will be spent. The group is very open to new members willing to make an honest contribution. All you have to do is express your interest to one of the Board members.

Nominations to the Board are also made at the annual Friends Dinner in the spring. The annual dinner is the social high point of the Friends year. There are usually 50 to 90 people in attendance, and it is the one event where the general membership is gathered. The officers and board are installed, dinner is eaten, and a speaker talks or sings. This year

Trying to take photographs while on the graveyard shift

By Holt Confer
Copley News Service

For some reason that I've never clearly understood, I'm fascinated by cemeteries. In many of them you'll not only find a good bit of interesting history about the people who have been buried there, but you'll also find many strange slices of humor and some statuary that often defies description.

When I say the statuary defies description, I don't want to get any letters from disturbed readers — I don't mean derogatorily. All I'm saying is that I really don't know how to describe it generically. Some of the statues are religious, some literally drip pathos, while others, flaunting their size, appear to make a social statement about the resident.

Anyway, enough about graveyard art. Let's talk about graveyard photography. Unless you happen to be haunting (now there's a bad pun) graveyards, you might not have any idea just how much activity actually goes on there.

For example, several years ago, I ghosted (another bad one) a "how to" book on genealogy. In doing the research I learned that people who spend a great deal of time working on their family tree actually spend much of that time rambling around through old burial grounds trying to locate their relatives. Once a head stone has been found, not only are the inscriptions carefully copied, but the stone itself is photographed. This thing we call progress (sometimes it's vandalism) often makes the longevity of most material things questionable. So the theory of the hard-core genealogists is that once you've found evidence of a relative, it's prudent to take all the verbal and visual information you can get.

There's a bit of a knack to photographing tombstones — particularly those old ones where the inscriptions have been weathering heat and cold for close to 200 years. If the light shines directly on the face of the tombstone, you'll soon discover that the worn inscription is very difficult to read.

However, if you make certain the light is shining across the face of the tombstone — and here an artificial light source works very well — the light striking even slight indentations will produce shadows that will show up quite well and bring out the writing on the stone.

I know you're going to ask me at just what angle the light needs to be held to be most effective and the answer is that I can't tell you, simply because all those tombstones will have weathered differently. The solution, therefore, is to try several different angles in each situation. Even if you have to make a dozen or more exposures to insure that one of them will be correct — so what! You've probably invested a whole lot of time and money getting this far in your search for information, so why try to skimp on a few cents worth of film, especially when that information is not only a crucial part of your family heritage, but there's a chance that the next time you go back to that location (if you ever do), what you've had the rare chance to photograph today might be gone — probably forever.

Incidentally, if

ARE YOUR HABITS CONTROLLING YOU?

Hypnosis may be your answer

UPLAND - For years they called it witchcraft. Members of the healing arts snubbed it. But now, since the American Medical Association approved clinical hypnosis in 1958, hypnosis is now recognized as the simplest, most natural way to stretch the mind to enhance human potential for personal and professional growth.

Steve Zagorin, President of Begin, Inc., a highly successful hypnosis center in Upland explains his rapid growth this way:

"We have helped hundreds of clients lose weight, stop smoking and achieve their goals through, not only through the hypnotherapy sessions, but through teaching each client methodologies for controlling and utilizing their mind in a far more effective manner than ever before. This instructive program teaches you how to improve your self image, establish realistic and attainable goals, revise habit patterns and change attitudes, and build enthusiasm, zest and eagerness for better living. Begin, Inc. is an outgrowth of Smokers Last Chance, founded by Zagorin in 1979. Zagorin said that since so many of his happy "new non-smoker" clients repeatedly requested additional programs to help them improve other areas of their lives he decided to expand his range of programs. Zagorin spent considerable time studying under one of the foremost experts in hypnotherapy, Dr. Al Krasner, founder of the American Institute of Hypnotherapy in Orange County.

"Dr. Krasner taught me some very valuable lessons, one of which is the only people who cannot be helped are those who don't want help". Zagorin's associate Warren Hawkins is currently working with managers of health spas who are finding out that a positive mental perspective, reinforced through hypnosis techniques enhances the physical output.

Zagorin states that the primary concern at Begin, Inc. is to design an individual program suited to each client's needs. "Our methods have virtually limitless possibilities in helping our clients achieve positive results in any area they desire."

All sessions are private and are conducted personally by either Zagorin or Hawkins. All programs include instruction in self hypnosis and a free self-hypnosis reinforcement tape.

Begin Inc. is located at 1152 N. Mountain, Suite 206, in Upland. Additional information and appointments can be obtained by calling (714) 981-3096.

Classes cater to variety of tastes it in terms of art instead of psychedelic design," she said.

Another new class offered by Upland Recreation is adult gymnastics.

"It's more of an introductory class. There are a lot of tricks that can't be learned (by adults) because they aren't limber or because of their fear," she said.

Learning to overcome some of those fears and meeting each student's capabilities is the class goal, according to Testa, whether it's someone new to gymnastics or someone with a strong background hoping to get back into shape.

"The floor exercises and the routines are similar to regular exercise classes with a warm-up and cool-down period. It's a good workout for them too and they'll really appreciate what the Olympic athletes are going through," she said.

Testa said she thinks the fitness class trend is dying out, "although we still have the standard exercise classes with the old faithfuls attending."

She said the department is always open to suggestions for classes. "We wanted to offer break dancing this time, but couldn't find an instructor," she said.

Rancho Cucamonga Recreation Department has added a soft-sculpture doll-making class this quarter, according to Kevin Evans.

Evans, recreation supervisor, said a class which makes BJ's Babies is being taught by Nita, of Nita's Nook in Alta Loma, on Thursday nights from 7 to 8:50.

"Back by popular demand is our sweet decorating class for pies and cookies for children, and cake decorating for adults," Evans said.

Floral design is another class being offered again because of its high popularity, along with the usual karate and aerobics.

"Ballroom dancing goes over extremely well," Evans said. Class size is usually 40 people and features a surprisingly mixed age group.

"We find a lot of young couples taking the class," he said.

Another new class offered this quarter is calligraphy. "We've had a lot of requests for this class," Evans said. "It's a nice art form."

"I think people want to spend their leisure time learning something more productive rather than just having fun," he said.

Some, he said, are looking for a hobby that may involve resale value, like stained glass.

According to Evans, the trend in fitness classes has been in recreation for awhile and will continue, whether it is in karate, or any of the other classes which combine conditioning with another skill.

"Arts and craft classes have done well," Evans said. "Many people are returning to learn a new style or art they may have never thought they could do. They're coming out amazed that they can be creative."

The swim program is also going strong in Rancho Cucamonga. "It's a nice way to cool off," Evans said.

For more information on any of the classes or registration call 985-0994 in Upland or 980-3145 in Rancho Cucamonga. □ photographing tombstones will help you fill in some of the blanks on your family tree, let me make another suggestion. Don't just stop with a photograph(s) of the particular marker or markers that interest you. Take an extra half hour or so and make some overall shots of the graveyard — one of these shots might have your ancestor's headstone in the foreground and the local church or some other easily recognizable structure in the background; while another possibility could be an overall picture of the church and cemetery, taken from a nearby hill. What I'm trying to encourage you to do is to follow the same procedure that you see

(perhaps unknowingly) in many motion pictures — first there's the "long" shot to set the location; then there's a "medium" shot to begin drawing the viewer into the scene; and finally, there's a closeup to show where the actual action is taking place. It's worked for years in the movies. It will work for you too.

And finally, while you're walking around the cemetery, you might want to spend a few moments looking at the church. Many churches have really unique architecture that lends itself to very dramatic photography. Watch your lighting and your foreground subjects and, of course, be particularly careful with your camera angle. With any architectural photography, it's important for the vertical lines in the structure to be parallel with the sides of the viewfinder frame. This means you need to check your camera's vertical and horizontal alignment on your tripod. I always carry a little pocket level in my gadget bag that works just fine for putting my camera in the proper position. If there is anything that I find disturbing in a picture of a building, it's when the structure appears to be falling backwards.

If you want to go whole hog on this project, you might want to investigate the purchase of a shift lens (sometimes called a perspective control lens). Shift lenses are available from the manufacturers of all the major camera lines — and if you really intend to do a lot of architectural photography — churches or otherwise — then don't be spooked (another one?) by the $300 or so price tag — it will be money well spent. As as for the humor in graveyards, I'll leave you laughing with this epitaph:

"It seems like a strange place to be,

"Lying here under the tree.
"I liked it better, I think,
"Where there was whiskey to drink."

The fatigue of wine tasting competition

By Dan Berger
Copley News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Tasting and evaluating 204 Chardonnays in a five-hour period is not my idea of a party, and following that with three more days of wine testing is sheer torture.

I have been a judge at wine competitions before, but rarely have I experienced quite the same amount of pressure over four days as I did when I was a judge at the recent San Francisco Fair and Exposition wine competition.

By midday of the first day, a pre-elimination round for the large 1982 Chardonnay class, my palate was fatigued. I was finding that my old, standard method of evaluating wines was being radically changed. I was using tricks.

For example, I found that the aromas of the 16 wines served to the three of us judging the Chardonnays were rising from the glasses, and blending together in the air. The room smelled like Chardonnay.

So instead of sitting at the table, close to the 16 glasses, I had to stand, lift the one glass I was evaluating, and take a few steps away from the rest of the glasses, to get a clear whiff of the one wine.

Also, I found that tiny sips of the wine were no longer giving me the flavors that permitted fair evaluation. I was taking huge sips, sloshing the wine around in my mouth, and finally spitting.

But, alas, some wine gets into the body by osmosis, and the result is a slight headiness, combined with a numbness of palate that makes you wonder what you are tasting.

Moreover, many of the 1982 Chardonnays were quite sweet. The 1982 vintage produced Chardonnay grapes with huge amounts of natural sugars, some of which didn't ferment out into alcohol, but remained in the wines. The result was a sweetness level that was an annoyance in some wines, cloying in others, but in all cases the sweeter wines were hard to evaluate for their unctuousness.

The other panelists doing the Chardonnay evaluations with me — author/judge Carolyn Thompson and wine merchant Greg O'Flynn — also found the sweetness level objectionable late in the day and we wondered if our palates were simply unable, at that stage, to make the determination of which wines were actually sweet, and which ones were simply high in alcohol, giving us the feeling they were sweet.

So we asked to retaste some of the first wines of the day, and found that they, too, were slightly sweet. But some of them were nicely made and deserved the medals we had listed on our sheets as recommendations.

The medals for these wines were, unfortunately, given out by another panel; we wound up awarding medals in Cabernet Sauvignon, the elimination round for which was done by another panel.

By the end of the second day, my mouth felt like it was lined with fine-grained sandpaper: the tannins in the wine had caused the gums to redden, and the alcohol was bothering the nerve in one tooth.

By the end of the third day, the fatigue had taken possession of my right arm, the one I do the swirling with.

When it came time to judge the sweepstakes wines, to determine the best wine of the show, I was unprepared to taste any more wine, but the panel of 22 judges courageously located a handsome 1981 Pinot Noir and named it best wine of the show. Results of the judging were not immediately announced, but I'll get key winners and report them in a future column.

The San Francisco Fair judging was the largest ever held in the United States, with 1,862 wines entered. However, that is sure to be surpassed by the Orange County Fair wine judging and the Los Angeles County Fair wine judging, to be held later this year.

San Francisco, under the directorship of Harvey Steiman, managing editor of The Wine Spectator, is one of the few competitions open to all U.S. wineries — California and out-of-state.

Tallship parade will celebrate the 4th and the Olympics

"TOPSail '84," the Tallship Olympic Parade of Sail saluting the XXIII Summer Olympiad will take place on the 4th of July.

The 35-mile parade of sail and motor training ships and other large sailing vessels, accompanied by thousands of smaller sail and power craft, is being sponsored by the Port of Long Beach and has been endorsed by the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee as an official Olympic Cultural Event and is listed as one of the Olympic Art Festivals' free "happenings."

The U.S. Coast Guard and chief pilots from Los Angeles and Long Beach Harbors, along with a number of sailing experts, have laid out a parade route, running just offshore from Manhattan Beach past the South Bay beaches, around Palos Verde Peninsula and through both ports to an anchorage area near the Long Beach shoreline.

Among the many vessels participating in TOPSail '84 are the state's official tallship Californian, Mexico's square-rigged naval training barque "Cuauhtemoc," the California Maritime Academy's Golden Bear, Japan and Korea's cadet training vessels and the cruiseship Azure Seas.

Following the daytime procession, which will move at a steady six knots, the official 30-vessel parade flotilla will drop anchor between the downtown Long Beach marina and Belmont Pier. Here the vessels and their crews will be honored with a nighttime aerial and fireworks Independence Day Salute.

Admission is free to both the daytime and nighttime festivities.

Information regarding participation and entry forms for large sailing ships and yacht clubs can be obtained by contacting Elmar Baxter, Chairman of TOPSail '84 Committee, Port of Long Beach, P.O. Box 570, Long Beach 90801.

Maximize for successful garden

By Dean Carroll
Copley News Service

So you love vegetables. Want to grow lots of fresh, tasty vegetables in a garden of your own, but limited on space? Don't abort your plans or settle for less than you want. With a little planning and research, you can become a gardener successful at maximizing your land's productive capacity.

Before you start digging, you'll need some gardening equipment. Paul Fisher, tool catalog product manager of the Brookstone Co., a merchandiser of gardening equipment, recommends purchasing good-quality tools of a size and weight comfortable for your use. A spade, digging fork, rake, hoe, trowel, garden hose and wheelbarrow will put you in business. Other more specialized tools will follow as the season progresses and you determine your needs.

When selecting a garden site, remember that maximum sunlight is essential for at least part of the day, preferably early morning sun.

Now, think about the quantity and variety of vegetables you want to sow — a little basil, parsley and chives, or baskets full of tomatoes, zucchini and peppers. The amount of available space in your yard doesn't necessarily indicate how much you can grow.

If you don't have a lot of land, consider some of the following ways recommended by Fisher to make the most of the space you have.

— POT OR TUB GARDENING. Fill wood or plastic tubs with soil and place in sunny areas such as apartment balconies, flagstone patios or paved driveways. You'll be surprised at the variety of vegetables which have been developed to grow mostly in containers. Using gardening pots allows you to use a weed-free, nutrient-rich soil mix that can be properly drained and aerated.

— VERTICAL CROPPING. Use plant supports — stakes, poles and trellises — to induce vinelike crops such as peas, melons, cucumbers and tomatoes to grow up instead of across.

Keep in mind, however, that vertically grown crops require more water since more leaf surfaces are exposed to heat and drying wind. It also is important to situate climbing vegetables around the perimeter of the garden so they don't block the sun from each other or any ground-growing vegetables.

— RAISED BEDS. Raised bed gardening could be the answer to problems of poor quality, hard or inadequately drained soil and sloping ground. Almost any crop, even root vegetables such as carrots and beets, can flourish in a properly tended raised bed.

To make a raised bed, spade the topsoil up into beds from narrow pathways that will run between them, digging out all the large rocks from the soil beds. A soil depth of 10 inches is sufficient to develop roots. Rake the surfaces flat. The sides of the beds will need a heavy mulch cover to prevent evaporation of soil moisture.

— INTERCROPPING. This method makes use of the space that must be left between rows of taller vegetables such as peas, runner beans and tomatoes by planting rows of short, quick-growing crops such as lettuce, radishes and summer spinach. The trick is to learn enough about the growth habits and nutrient and water needs of the various crops so that intercropped plants will not compete for sunlight, food and moisture.

— CATCH CROPS OR SUCCESSION PLANTING. If your gardening enthusiasm is still high, take advantage of the ground space available after harvesting midsummer vegetables like peas and salad crops and sow others like chicory and Swiss chard, which can be planted during midsummer and harvested in the late summer or early fall.

While it's not always easy to plant seeds during the hot summer months, you can get a head start by establishing seedlings prior to the initial harvest. This way, when a space opens up, all you have to do is transplant the seedling.

Pesky weeds can ruin a perfect garden

By Patrick Denton
Copley News Service

At this time of the year, it's often a challenge to keep our lawns and ornamental beds, fruit and vegetable growing areas free of competing weeds.

One major guideline applies to weed control in the home garden: Get them young before they mature any seeds. One of the reasons weeds so easily become a plague is that many are such prolific producers of seed. A single plant can often produce as many as 20,000 seeds. Not only that, but those seeds don't always germinate all at once, but in maddening dribs and drabs, in a steady procession over several seasons.

The method we choose to manage weeds on our properties depends on where they occur — on gravel driveways, along fence lines, in lawns, around ornamental shrubs and trees, in the small fruit garden, or in annual flowers and vegetable growing areas.

There is no doubt that hand weeding is the safest course for most areas of the garden. It's the only way that risks absolutely no damage to desirable plants.

However, on gravel or cinder driveways, path, and along fence lines where no green growth at all is desired, a soil sterilant is sometimes used to render the soil incapable of growing anything. Salt, borax and borate compounds are examples. They are applied as a drench in solution, or broadcast in granular form over the gravel or soil surface and watered in.

The thing to remember in using soil sterilizing chemicals is that they suppress growth for long periods because of their action on the soil. They must not be applied where the chemical might reach the root zone of any desirable ornamental plant or shrub.

Special care has to be taken if the land slopes at all, as the chemical, once in the soil, will leach down slopes and kill or damage anything growing below the area to which it was applied.

Weeds in lawns can often be controlled by keeping the lawn well fertilized, and mowing high and often. Where the use of a herbicide seems necessary, applying it in granular form or from a watering can, or from a wax bar impregnated without the herbicide is preferable to spraying in which the danger of drifting is always present.

As with any garden chemical, read the label directions and cautions carefully, and never use more than the recommended rate.

Weed management around trees, ornamental shrubs and flowers requires an even more cautious hand. For these areas there are on the market herbicides in granular form which will kill germinating weed seeds.

The idea in using these granular types of weed preventer is to clear the area of weeds, then use the granules to take care of any weed seeds that may be lurking in the soil. If you should choose to take this route in your ornamental beds, read the label very carefully before purchasing one of these products, to determine on which plants the individual product may safely be used. If used improperly, they may harm some desirable plants.

In my own garden I prefer to follow a weeding in these areas with a close planting of annual flowers, which provides a colored carpet to the bed as it suppresses the growth of undesirable weed seedlings.

In rockeries and other ornamental beds, a careful spot treatment of a liquid weed killer applied with a small brush is possible. This is a method useful for weeds like buttercups which are often difficult to pull.

Know the weed you're going after before you choose a herbicide, as different herbicides are geared to the control of different kinds of weeds. Ask the garden center salesperson to direct you to an appropriate product, and read the label carefully before purchasing it — and again before using it.

Bermuda lawns facing onslaught from disease that spread from north

A fungal disease that has ruined the spring green of bermudagrass lawns from Fresno to Bakersfield in recent years is now in Southern California turf and likely to spread, a scientist here warns.

Called spring dead spot, the disease appears as circular patches of dead and dying bermudagrass after the grass breaks its winter dormancy. The circles of diseased grass vary in size from a few inches to a foot or more in diameter.

"The diseased areas are depressed because the upper leaf blades and stems of the diseased bermudagrass are dead, bleached and dried out," explains Robert M. Endo, professor of plant pathology at the University of California. "A brown to black dry rot afflicts the roots, stolons and basal portions of bermudagrass stems."

Endo and Howard D. Ohr, UC Cooperative Extension plant pathologist, are conducting research aimed at providing fungicidal control of spring dead spot disease. To date, they have no control recommendations.

The UCR scientist notes that the disease, caused by the fungus Leptosphaeria korrae, has commonly and severely damaged home lawns in the southern San Joaquin Valley since 1978. Last year, he adds, the disease first appeared in Southern California — on golf course fairways.

"The fact that the disease has appeared on home lawns and golf courses in the hot inland San Joaquin Valley as well as a long the cool California coast suggests that the fungus may be destructive over a wide range of soil types and climates," Endo says.

The disease usually doesn't appear in a bermudagrass planting until it's two to three years old, according to the UCR plant pathologist. In subsequent years it usually reappears in or near the spots initially infected. By summer, Endo adds, the dead patches usually have filled in with new growth spreading in from the patches' borders and/or from new growth arising from surviving plants within the patches.

The soil-borne fungus that causes the disease grows over the surfaces of bermudagrass roots, stolons and the base of the stems as microscopic threads, the UCR scientist explains. The threads infect the plant parts they cover.

"The disease is spread by slow, lateral growth of the fungal threads from plant to plant, by movement of infected plant parts through mowings and in clippings, and by purchasing sod that contains infected plants," Endo says. "The effects of irrigation, fertilization and other cultural practices on development of the disease aren't known."

"We know that common bermudagrass and the hybrid bermudagrass varieties Tifgreen and Santa Ana are susceptible to spring dead spot. The susceptibility of other turfgrass varieties to the disease hasn't been determined, to date."

R.C. library will extend hours to meet needs of the community

The Rancho Cucamonga Branch Library will extend its hours beginning Monday, July 2.

Under the new schedule, the library will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday; 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

The schedule change is the direct result of the passage of last year's SB 358. Money from this funding bill has been used by the county to purchase more materials, to hire additional help and to increase open hours.

With the new scheduling, the Rancho Cucamonga branch will be open 50 hours per week instead of the current 44 hours.

Phil Crocker, branch librarian said there are two important changes in the new schedule: first is the library will now be open on Tuesday evenings instead of Wednesday evenings.

The second important change is that the new schedule is more consistent than the old one, the librarian said.

"The public will no longer have to contend with a library that opens its doors at three different times during the week, because under the new schedule the library will open at the same time, 10 a.m., Monday through Saturday," he said.

The C

Cheers and screams must be as familiar to graduation ceremonies as Elgar's perennial march, "Pomp and Circumstance."

Lining up for the procession into Upland High School's football field last Wednesday, the 515 graduating seniors knew how to play their part — whoops, hollers and screams drifted over to the stands where an overflow crowd of parents and spectators were eagerly awaiting the resonant strains of the school's band. It was the seniors' yells, not the march, that signaled the culmination of four years of dances, tests, required classes and football games.

Parents quickly loaded cameras in the final moments before the processional began. Late arrivals struggled to get a seat in the stadium, which had been nearly full thirty minutes before the ceremony began. As the procession began, parents strained to catch a glimpse of their favorite senior, often waving wildly and doing other things they usually wouldn't admit to in public.

All knew it was a milestone day.

In greeting the audience and graduates, Principal Glenn Fisher informed the crowd that the 1984 Highlanders had indeed achieved a milestone in the school's history. Based on results he received that morning, Fisher told the graduates that — as a group — they had scored highly on the California Assessment Program tests.

"This class came out in the 79th percentile ranking," Fisher said. "This is the highest score we've had at Upland High School."

More whoops, hollers and screams.

Screams gave way to emotions as senior speaker Julie Gamboa told parents and teachers that "we are happier and prouder than any one of use can put into words."

Gamboa, one of the class' valedictorians, encouraged the class to overcome difficulties and go forward in triumph — themes familiar to graduation speeches.

"We must go as far as we can see and then look a little further," Gamboa said. Continuing her theme of encouragement, she concluded by saying the UHS Class of 1984 "won't settle for anything but the best."

In presenting the class to Birt Martin, board of education representative, Senior Class President Jennifer Kitchen recalled some of the highlights in the class' four-year high school education.

"There are memories of beach trips in our senior year and of being put sweetly into trash cans in our freshman year," Kitchen said, evoking laughter, not screams, from her classmates.

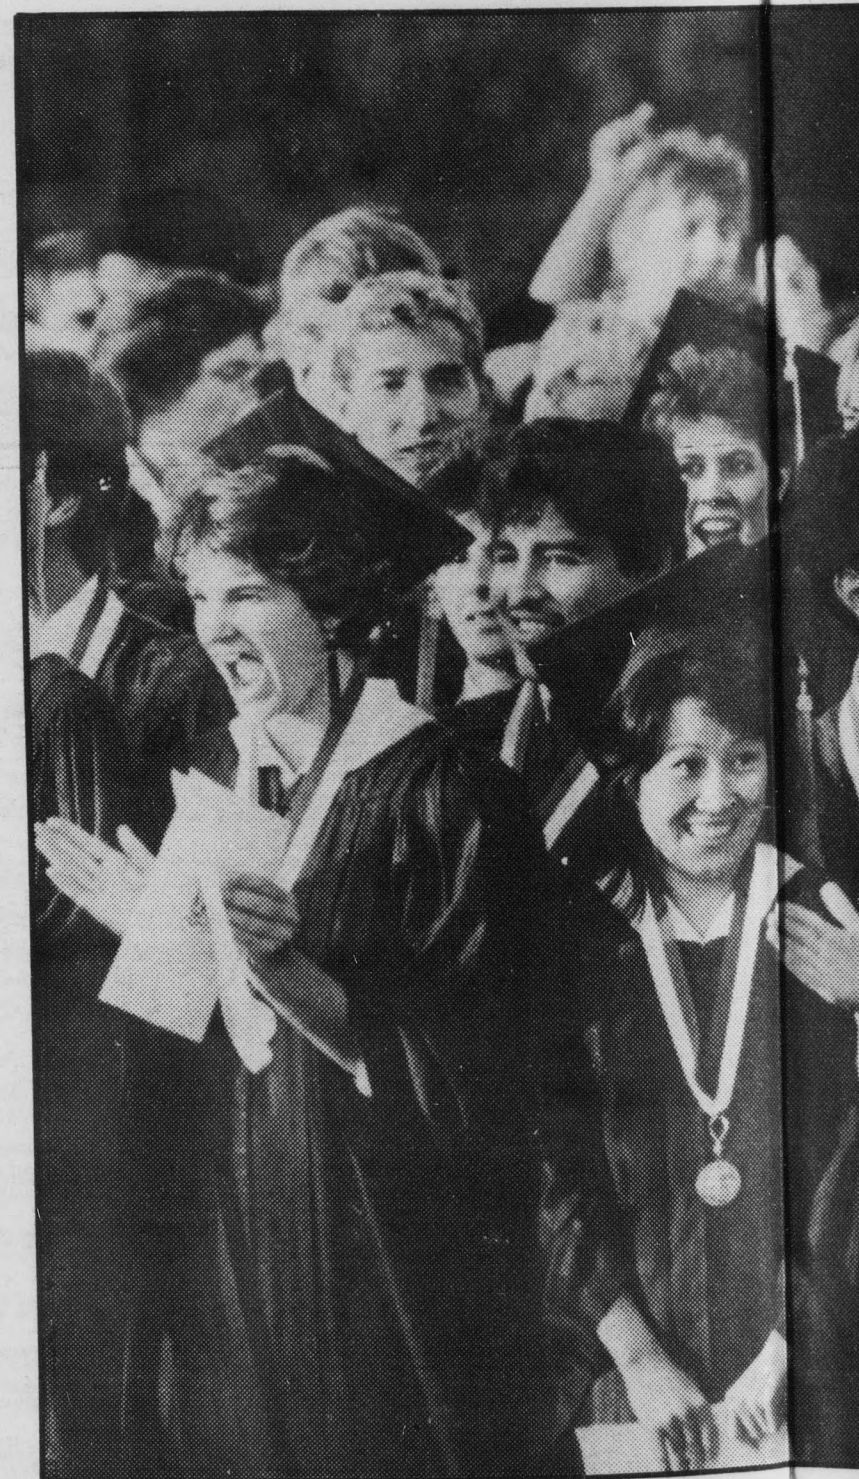

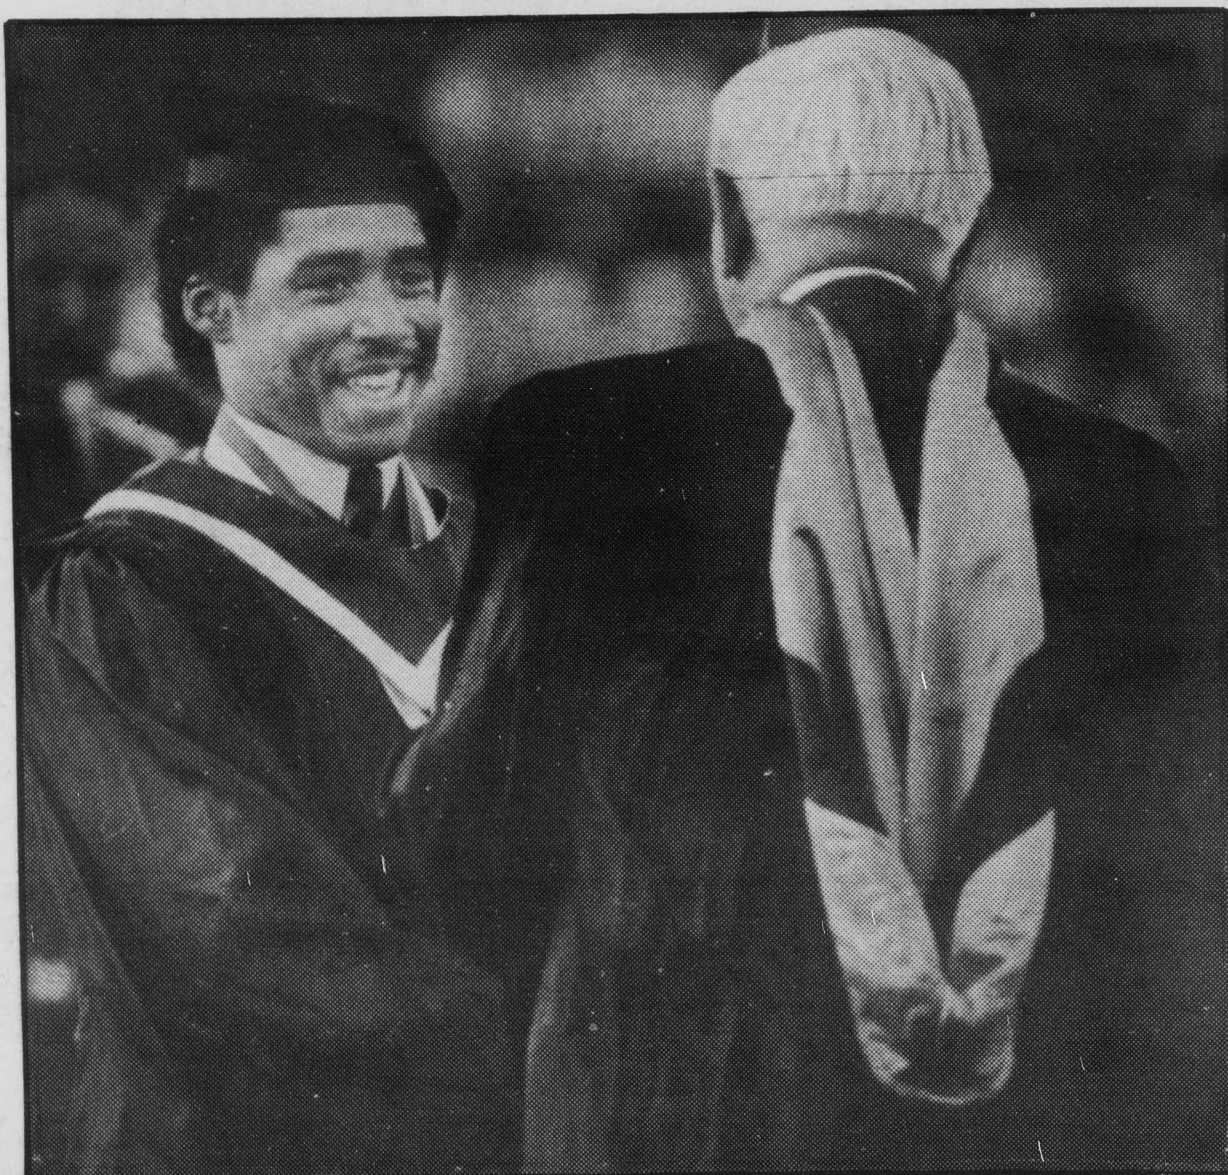

All of those memories, Kitchen said, have led to commencement, which she said was a time to look forward.

"A sense of unity has been created through the school and it's sad, but we can't go back. It's too late to go back," she added.

And with Kitchen's words ringing in their ears, the seniors were handed their diplomas — and a lot of whoops, hollers and screams ensued. □

Serious illness can really hurt many horses

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.
Copley News Service

Q. Our yearling quarter horse colt was recently diagnosed as a "wobbler." Our veterinarian did not give us any encouragement in terms of treating the condition, nor was he very precise regarding the cause of wobbles.

Please enlighten us. We are quite distraught about our colt.

A. Wobbler syndrome, also called ataxia of foals, wobbles of foals and equine incoordination, is a serious lameness disease of young horses.

Signs of the wobbler syndrome may appear at any time from birth to 3 years of age. However, the majority of cases appear prior to 2 years of age.

Wobbles of foals has been reported in Thoroughbreds, standardbreds, Arabians, American saddlebreds, Tennessee walking horses and quarter horses. Although unreported, it probably occurs in other breeds of horses, as well.

The disease begins as an incoordination of the hind legs. Wobbles always involves both hind legs. As the disease progresses, the forelimbs become involved in most cases. The disease progresses gradually. Worsening or improvement usually occurs within the first few weeks, though it is rare for diseased horses to show any great improvement.

Early in the disease, dragging of the toes of the hind feet occurs. Many affected horses experience difficulty in turning. Horses with wobbles appear to be normal in every way with the exception of the rear limb incoordination. Affected horses have normal body temperatures, normal appetites and normal body functions. Most affected horses degenerate to a certain level of incoordination and then remain that way indefinitely.

The cause of wobbles in foals is complex and not well understood. It is possible that the disease is inherited. The disease can be transmitted by non-wobbler horses. Many horse owners believe the cause of wobbles is injury to the spinal cord. However, it appears that the disease makes the foal more accident prone and the accident blamed for the condition is really secondary.

Nutritional deficiencies and worms also have been listed as causes.

Diagnosis of wobbles of foals is usually based on the clinical signs. If recovery occurs, it is very unlikely that the condition was wobbles. Horses with incoordination of the hind limbs without other noticeable signs should be suspected of having wobbles.

There is no known cure for wobbles. Although corticosteroids have been reported to be helpful, most affected horses usually suffer relapses. It is very rare for horses to recover from this disease.

Severely affected horses should not be used for breeding animals since the disease may be heritable. The offspring may either be affected with the disease or carry the genetic factor for the disease.

Your veterinarian was correct in not being too encouraging regarding wobbles in your foal. Much research needs to be done to discover the causes and effective treatment for this very serious disease of young horses.

Writers' Club sets meeting

The general meeting of the Pomona Valley Writers Club will be held Tuesday, June 27, at 7 p.m. in the Garden Room of the Ontario Library.

Members are asked to bring a description of a "Most Unforgettable Character," approximately 300 words in length. These will be read and critiqued.

Some of the members have been interested in having a discussion meeting in addition to the general meeting of the club. The next meeting of the discussion group, tentatively dubbed 'The Pomona Valley Writers Club Plus' will be held on Monday, July 9, in the Garden Room of the Ontario Library at 7 p.m. The meeting will be chaired by Richard Corey.

The meeting will be structured so that

Voyages to be honored

By Lea Blauvelt
Copley News Service

A 20-cent U.S. commemorative stamp honoring the 400th anniversary of the Roanoke Voyages will be the first issue in a new Explorer's Series. It will be issued July 13 in Manteo, N.C.

On March 25, 1584, Queen Elizabeth I granted Walter Raleigh permission to establish an English colony in the New World. Raleigh formed an expedition and placed Philip Amadas and Arthur Barlow in command. On July 13, 1584, they landed on what is now the coast of North Carolina and took possession of the new land in the name of the queen. Pleased with the reports of the expedition Queen Elizabeth knighted Raleigh.

One year later, in 1585, Raleigh outfitted an expedition of 108 men who sailed from Plymouth, England to Roanoke Island. Plagued by food shortages, inadequate housing and Indian hostility, the colonists were forced to return to England.

hand-rolling began its comeback as a money-saving device. Taxes on commercial cigarettes have risen drastically over the last few years — they now constitute up to 37 per cent of the total retail price in some states — and "custom-rolling" with tax-free loose tobacco can save smokers hundreds of dollars each year.

According to Tobacco Outlook & Situation, a U.S. Department of Agriculture publication, Americans smoked an estimated 4.6 billion hand-rolled cigarettes in 1982. And estimates are much higher for 1983.

"TONIGHT WE'LL GO WILD AND TURN ON THE DISHWASHER"

Thanks for giving your appliances the afternoon off.

"I know what you're thinking. Where do I get my energy? The same place you do. Southern California Edison. I just use it wisely.

"It's hot, so I'm giving my appliances the afternoon off. I use them before noon and after 6 p.m. Because if I don't, Edison has to build costly new power plants. I don't want them to do that. I'd rather help them save money, so I'll have more to spend on skydiving.

"So why don't you join me. Give your appliances the afternoon off. Tonight we'll go wild and turn on the dishwasher."

Pipeline hosts big skateboard competition

With 20 professionals and 30 amateurs on hand, it was a day of flair and excitement as the Skateboard Summer Series came to Upland's Pipeline Skatepark last weekend.

Part of a six-contest series, Pipeline was selected for use of its "Combi-bowl," known as one of the best competitive bowls available. Designed to resemble an empty pool, the unique Combi-bowl consists of two attached bowls, allowing skaters to enhance their routines with a large variety of tricks by going from bowl to bowl.

Each category was trimmed to a "jam", or eight skaters, which competed before nearly 300 fans for the top finishing spots. The amateurs were featured on Saturday, with the professionals splitting more than $1,300 in Sunday's finals.

Judges for the competition included Tony Howlett, Tim Parks, Mike Siegfried, Marty Jiminez, Brian Martin and Dale Smith.

Softball champs in tourney

Upland's Hilltopper Green Belt Softball Complex will be the site of three divisional championships for the Inter-City Girls Softball Association (ICGSA).

The finals will be held on June 30 beginning at 1 p.m.

Action in the second annual District Championship Tournament begins Monday at three different sites. The mini-minor division (third and fourth graders) will compete in Norco; Upland will host the minor division (fifth and sixth graders); while the major division (seventh thru 9th graders) will be contested in Montclair.

The ICGSA takes in 10 different leagues with more than 4,000 players and 330 teams. The players range in age from 5 years old (T-Ball) to 18 (senior division) and played in leagues from early March through this month.

Participating cities include the Upland Hilltoppers; ACE (Alta Loma-Cucamonga-Etiwanda) Youth Softball; Walnut Girls

Softball; Norco Girls Softball; West Covina Bobby Sox; Charter Oak Girls Softball; Diamond Bar Girls

Softball; Montclair Golden Girls; Corona Girls Softball and Claremont Girls Softball.

The ICGSA District Tournament annually brings together the individual division champions from each league to determine the top team. Each league is allowed to enter only the championship team.

Additional information about the five-day tournament can be obtained by calling 981-1679.

Panther cage camp dates set

Basketball players ages 8-18 are invited to attend the Panther Cage Camp, slated from June 25-29 at Chaffey College.

Under the direction of Panthers head basketball coach Jeff McCall, the camp features and experienced coaching staff and daily game competition for both boys and girls, and is part of the Rancho Cucamonga Community Services program.

CC's women cagers recruiting fans for trip

Chaffey College's women's basketball team is looking for a few good players ... and fans.

Arlene McCall is looking for players to fill the roster for the 1984-85 season, a campaign that will include an appearance in a tournament at Hawaii Pacific College in early December.

The Panthers have been invited to play in the tournament and McCall is inviting fans to make the trip across the Pacific.

"We're excited about the tourney and we would like our fans to join us if possible," said the veteran Chaffey coach. "This trip is for the Chaffey community, faculty and staff and all interested. We like to think of our fans as part of the family, so we've invited them to come along."

According to McCall, cost per person will be $471.39, which includes a condo suite with full kitchen at the Waikiki Hobran and roundtrip fare vis Northwest Orient.

A deposit of $79 will be required by June 27, with the balance due by Oct. 15.

The Panthers will be flying out of LAX on Dec. 3, returning Dec. 10.

Any women interested in playing for the Panthers next fall can contact McCall at 987-1737, ext. 446.
